Levin Home for War Veterans

A life worth living; the Levin Home difference

Levin Home for War Veterans embraces the Eden Alternative – an elder-directed model of care. That means you'll be supported to make decisions about your personal wellbeing and your new home, and to maintain your independence and routines in a way that's right for you.

A highlight for many residents is the social life. At Levin Home we'll support you to keep up with your hobbies, interests and passions. After all, that's what adds life to life!

As well as enjoying the company of others at a similar stage of life, Levin Home residents get involved in organising daily happenings and special events. This can make for a varied social calendar.

Best of all, the involvement of the community is a big part life at Levin Home. Residents are encouraged to invite their grandchildren, family and friends to spend time with them enjoying the relaxing lounges, exploring the spacious grounds or chatting over a meal. In fact, even your pet can move in with you if it 'gets on' with others.

Your place. Your space

When people move to Levin Home they often ask us if they can bring their own belongings. The answer: yes! After all, this is your home.

We're sure you'll enjoy the shared lounges, entertaining areas and spacious gardens. But you'll also have your own private room. This is your space.

Your room can be furnished if you wish, however you are invited to make the space your own by bringing along your own familiar things. Many residents bring along photos, artwork, ornaments, favourite pieces of furniture and bed covers.

At Levin Home we're also able to offer some premium rooms. These rooms are larger with ensuite and kitchenette options.

The Social Club

In early 2014 residents established the Veterans Arms. This social club is run by residents who invite family, friends and members of the community to attend each month.

Attendees enjoy entertainment, a meal and refreshments, as well as a game of pool or cards and music.

The New Zealand flag holds pride of place, but the room is also adorned with RSA memorabilia and includes a bar leaner, café style seating and comfy lounge chairs.
